Bank Restructuring in Indonesia

Dara Khambata

Abstract

The purpose of this paper is to evaluate the successes and failures of bank restructuring efforts in Indonesia. First, an overview of the banking sector in the country will be presented briefly. Secondly, the effect of the Asian crisis on the banking system will be discussed. Thirdly, the current restructuring process by the Indonesian government, the World Bank, the IMF and the Asian Development Bank will be examined. Finally, it will be determined whether or not the restructuring system has been successful, and possible measures to repair or improve the banking industry will be discussed.
