liquidity to financial institution lenders that lend to small businesses through the Small Business Administration's Paycheck Protection Program.

Extension. On March 8, 2021, the Board announced an extension of the PPPLF from March 31, 2021, until June 30, 2021.

As described in the Board's initial report to the Committees regarding the PPPLF, the Board took into consideration the disruptions in financial markets and economic activity caused by the COVID-19 pandemic when it initially authorized the PPPLF. Specifically, the Board assessed the price and availability of credit for small businesses as compared to normal market conditions. In addition, the Board considered the effects of the pandemic on economic activity generally, including unemployment claims and on the revenues and expenses of businesses.

Although financial markets have stabilized significantly, the availability of credit for small businesses served by the Paycheck Protection Program remains limited, and there is substantial continued uncertainty related to the economic effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. The Board's Regulation A provides that an emergency lending facility may be renewed if the Board finds that unusual and exigent circumstances continue to exist and the facility continues to appropriately provide liquidity to the financial system.¹⁰ Based on the continued economic disruptions described above, the Board extended the termination date for the PPPLF until June 30, 2021. The Secretary of the Treasury also approved the extension. The terms of the PPPLF are otherwise unchanged as result of this action.

Additional information about the PPPLF can be found on the Board's public website at <https://www.federalreserve.gov/monetarypolicy/ppplf.htm>.
